AT A GLANCE

Overview

Cumulus Estate Planning is an advisory engagement in which licensed attorneys, coordinating with your Cumulus advisor and tax professional, draft the core documents that govern the disposition of your assets at death, the management of your affairs during any period of incapacity, and the expression of your wishes regarding healthcare and end-of-life decisions. The engagement is document-drafting in nature; Cumulus acts in a fiduciary capacity only where separately retained as trustee, co-trustee, or successor trustee.

Investment products are not FDIC insured, not bank guaranteed, and may lose value. Any assets subsequently held in investment accounts titled to your trust remain subject to market risk.

WHAT YOUR PLAN WILL INCLUDE

The core documents

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT Last Will and Testament Governs the distribution of probate assets, names an executor, and designates guardians for minor children. A will alone does not avoid probate.	REVOCABLE LIVING TRUST Revocable Living Trust Holds titled assets for your benefit during life and directs their disposition at death outside of probate. Fully revocable and amendable during your lifetime.
POUR-OVER WILL Pour-Over Will Complements the trust by directing any probate assets that were not retitled before death into the trust, ensuring a unified distribution scheme.	DURABLE POWER OF ATTORNEY Durable Power of Attorney Authorizes a trusted agent to manage your financial affairs if you are incapacitated. 'Durable' means the authority survives incapacity.
ADVANCE HEALTHCARE DIRECTIVE Advance Healthcare Directive Appoints a healthcare agent and states your wishes regarding life-sustaining treatment, pain management, and organ donation.	HIPAA RELEASE HIPAA Release Authorizes named family members and healthcare agents to access your protected health information consistent with 45 C.F.R. Parts 160 and 164.

TWO INSTRUMENTS, DIFFERENT ROLES

Will vs. revocable trust — a comparison

A will and a revocable living trust are complementary instruments, not substitutes. Most Cumulus clients have both. The table below summarizes where each instrument is distinctive.

CONSIDERATION	LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT	REVOCABLE LIVING TRUST
Probate	Probate is required to transfer assets titled in the decedent's name alone.	Avoids probate for assets titled to the trust (the principal benefit for most clients).
Public record	Becomes a matter of public record when filed for probate.	Remains private; terms are not publicly filed.
Incapacity management	Does not address incapacity; provides no authority during life.	The successor trustee may manage trust assets during the grantor's incapacity without court intervention.
Multi-state property	Each state in which real estate is owned requires ancillary probate.	Real estate retitled to the trust avoids ancillary probate.
Cost to establish	Typically lower to draft initially.	Higher drafting cost; offset by probate savings.
Funding required	Nothing to fund; operates at death.	Must be actively funded by retitling assets to the trust.
Guardianship for minors	Will is the appropriate instrument to nominate guardians.	Trusts do not nominate guardians.

WHERE THE WORK SITS

A well-constructed estate plan — composition

The allocation below illustrates the typical composition of attorney time across the core documents in a Cumulus Estate Planning engagement. Complex plans — those involving closely-held business interests, irrevocable trusts, or multi-state real estate — typically reallocate more time to the trust and tax-planning components.

TRANSPARENT FLAT PRICING

Engagement fees

Cumulus Estate Planning is priced as a flat engagement based on the anticipated complexity of your plan. Complimentary planning is available to Managed Advisory clients with $2 million or more in qualifying assets under management. Out-of-pocket expenses (court filing fees, notary and witnessing, recording of real estate deeds) are billed at cost.

PLAN TYPE	FLAT FEE	TYPICAL CLIENT PROFILE
Foundational plan	$1,500	Simple estate, single state, no closely-held business; will + POA + healthcare directive + HIPAA.
Core trust-based plan	$2,500	Revocable trust, pour-over will, POA, healthcare directive, HIPAA; one or two states, no active business.
Advanced plan	$3,500	Trust-based plan with an irrevocable ILIT, gifting trust, or basic business-succession provisions.
Complex plan	$5,000	Multiple trusts, closely-held business, multi-state real estate, generation-skipping planning.
Managed Advisory $2M+ clients	Complimentary	Foundational, core, or advanced plans included with advisory relationship.

FROM DISCOVERY TO EXECUTION

How the engagement works

STEP	WHAT HAPPENS	TYPICAL TIMING
1 · Discovery	Your Cumulus advisor and the engagement attorney review your family, asset, and tax picture; identify priorities; and confirm jurisdictional considerations.	1–2 meetings
2 · Design	The attorney drafts a written design memorandum describing the recommended documents, funding steps, and any related insurance or retirement-account beneficiary updates.	7–10 days
3 · Drafting	First drafts of all documents are circulated for review. A second meeting addresses revisions and fine-tuning.	10–15 days
4 · Execution	Documents are signed with the required formalities (notary, two witnesses, self-proving affidavits) before an attorney or notary.	1–2 hours
5 · Funding	Assets are retitled to the trust: real estate deeds recorded, investment accounts re-registered, beneficiary designations coordinated, and a funding memorandum delivered.	30–60 days

THE CASE FOR A FUNDED REVOCABLE TRUST

Why probate avoidance matters

Probate is the court-supervised process by which title to a decedent's assets is transferred to heirs or beneficiaries. In many states, probate is public, can take six to eighteen months, and consumes 2% to 5% of the gross estate in court costs, personal-representative commissions, and attorney fees. Assets properly titled to a funded revocable trust pass outside of probate, preserving privacy, reducing delay, and minimizing administrative expense. A pour-over will remains essential as a safety net for any asset not retitled before death.

FEDERAL AND STATE TRANSFER TAXES

Tax considerations

Federal transfer taxes

- Federal estate-tax exemption (2026, illustrative): $13.99 million per individual. Scheduled sunset to approximately $7 million per individual absent legislative action.
- Federal gift-tax annual exclusion: $18,000 per donor, per donee.
- Portability — a surviving spouse may elect to use the deceased spouse's unused exemption (DSUE) on Form 706.
- Generation-skipping transfer (GST) tax: a separate exemption equal to the estate-tax exemption, allocated at death or by timely election.

State considerations

- A number of states impose their own estate or inheritance tax with lower exemption thresholds than federal.
- Community-property states (e.g., California, Texas, Washington) permit a full step-up in basis of community property at the first spouse's death.
- State-specific formalities (number of witnesses, self-proving affidavits, spousal elective share) must be respected in drafting and execution.
- Multi-state real estate benefits from retitling to a revocable trust to avoid ancillary probate.

COMMON QUESTIONS

Frequently asked questions

Do I need a revocable trust if I already have a will?

A revocable trust is not strictly required, but many clients benefit from one. A funded trust avoids probate (which is public and can be time-consuming), provides a mechanism for managing assets during incapacity, and is particularly valuable if you own real estate in more than one state or want to maintain privacy.

Who should be my agent under a durable power of attorney?

A trusted individual — often a spouse, adult child, or close family friend — who is financially capable and geographically available. Many clients name a primary agent plus a successor. Consider whether the agent should be permitted to make gifts, change beneficiary designations, or handle digital assets; these powers must be explicitly granted in the document.

What is the difference between a healthcare directive and a HIPAA release?

A healthcare directive appoints a healthcare agent and states your treatment wishes. A HIPAA release authorizes healthcare providers to share protected health information with named individuals under 45 C.F.R. Parts 160 and 164. Both are typically executed together; neither fully substitutes for the other.

How often should I update my plan?

Review every three to five years and after major life events: marriage, divorce, birth or adoption of children, death of a named fiduciary, significant change in assets or domicile, material change in tax law, or sale of a closely-held business.

Will Cumulus serve as my trustee or executor?

Cumulus, through its trust affiliate, is available to serve as corporate trustee, co-trustee, successor trustee, or executor where separately engaged. Fiduciary services are billed under the separate Trust Administration Services fee schedule.
